<sup>①</sup>Do you know the fun English expression “go bananas”? <sup>②</sup>It means someone gets very excited or very angry. <sup>③</sup>They can jump, shout, or do silly things.

to talk about crazy actions. <sup>⑥</sup>Some say it comes from monkeys. <sup>⑦</sup>Monkeys love bananas.

energy. <sup>⑩</sup>That funny situation helps people understand the expression.

birthday. <sup>⑬</sup>Fans can go bananas at a big game. <sup>⑭</sup>People can also go bananas when they lose something important. <sup>⑮</sup>It’s a fun way to show big feelings. <sup>⑯</sup>So the next time someone goes bananas, you’ll know they’re just full of energy — not talking about fruit!
