^①Farmers are trying a new way to grow plants. ^②It is called intercropping. ^③This means they grow different plants together in the same field. ^④For example, farmers can plant tall corn in one row and beans in the next row. ^⑤The corn gives shade to the beans, like an umbrella. ^⑥The beans help the corn by making the soil better. ^⑦Their roots have special bacteria that add important nutrients to the soil. ^⑧Different plants also use the soil wisely. ^⑨Each plant takes different nutrients, so the soil does not lose just one kind. ^⑩It is like friends eating together. ^⑪Each person picks different foods they like.

^⑫Intercropping also helps keep plants safe from bugs. ^⑬Because the plants are mixed, bugs have a harder time finding their favorite ones. ^⑭This way of planting helps plants grow well, keeps the soil healthy, and lets farmers grow more food. ^⑮Because of these benefits, more farmers around the world are starting to use intercropping.
